Regular Japanese courses are divided into the following levels, which are determined in accordance with the ACTFL (American Council on the Teaching of Foreign Languages) Proficiency Guidelines. The usual class composition is as described below, for a total of 6 classes. There might be changes in the class compositions on the results of the placement test. If any class has insufficient enrollment (fewer than 6 students), the class will be cancelled.

The Guidelines of each class is described below. Other than main textbooks, supplementary materials will be used in order to provide more advanced study commensurate with participants' level. Our instructors take a holistic approach to participants' education in this course. This approach, including independent study, aims to enhance participants' Japanese proficiency according to the level described below. Therefore, the following main textbooks and main materials are one means of attaining higher-level proficiency. They are never the goal of the Japanese course itself.

CLASS A

- 1) Instructional goals: To achieve proficiency of Intermediate-Low or above, equivalent to basic survival skills. Successful completion of courses at this level should make it possible for students to participate in a simple conversation, using linguistic means at the sentence-level, and express and understand communicative needs related to their immediate life. The same degree of proficiency is expected in the reading and writing mode.
- Students placed in classes at this level: Those with proficiency of Novice-Mid

Course materials:

Main textbooks: Banno, et al., Genki: An Integrated Course in Elementary Japanese II (Second Edition), The Japan Times, Lessons 13-23 Supplements: Banno, et al., Genki: An Integrated Course in Elementary Japanese Workbook II (Second Edition), The Japan Times

CLASS B

- 1) Instructional goals: To achieve proficiency of Intermediate-Low or above, equivalent to basic survival skills. Successful completion of courses at this level should make it possible for students to participate in a simple conversation, using linguistic means at the sentence-level, and express and understand communicative needs related to their immediate life. The same degree of proficiency is expected in the reading and writing mode.
